

Diana Arellano

Diana Arellano was a student at University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in the USA, planning to graduate in 2011 with a degree in Community Health when she interned in India. Jatan has provided numerous opportunities for Diana to examine their different programs that focus on women empowerment and female infanticide. Diana has acquired a new understanding about the severity of these issues and how Jatan helps to relieve them. She thoroughly enjoyed spending time with the adolescent girls, visiting Public Health Centers, discussing women's health problems with the parahealth workers and simply interacting with the Jatan staff and people in the local villages.

Diana is very glad she had the privilege to work with Jatan!
